THE Republicans claim that Fred Grant was beaten by the Prohibitionists. We thought he was beaten by the Democratic candidate.

THE Crown Prince of Germany has cancelled his wart dates and is at present playing an engagement with a cancer in his throat.

MR. VILAS is a good man and Mr.
Cleveland is a good man, but if it is all the same to Grover we would prefer that he let the people select a running mate for him.

WONDER what will Policeman Degan say to the anarchists when he meets them on the other shore? THE GAZETTE may have a few correspondents over there, but the mails are very slow.

JEM SMITH says Sullivan is a good man and that he can whip him, and John L. says Jem is a good man, but that he can maul the earth with him. There is every promise of a good fight in view.

THE Corpus Christi Gun club will give their first grand tournament 221 to 25th inst, inclusive. The shoot is to be under the National Association rules, and to be shot from five American traps.

It is not improbable that Dr. McGlynn will seek a reconciliation with his church, now that the occupation of politician has been taken from him. He could make money by taking the lecture platform, because he is so well known that the people would flock to hear him, but it is not unlikely that he will prepare his way for a return to his first love.

THE Paris News is having trouble.
Some of its subscribers complain that it is not as good as the New York Herald, and threaten to start another paper. The News is a better paper than the town can support unless those gentlemen who threaten to put money in an opposition paper should conclude to support the paper they have more liberally. It is a fact that nearly all those who complain about their home paper are men who have done but little to support it.

THE NEW YORK ELECTION.

The returns from New York are very gratifying to the Democrats. With so many tickets in the field, the situation was of a complex nature, and few of the sages could tell what the outcome would likely be. The George vote, fortunately, did not cut as much figure in the contest as was expected, and his weakness was Democratic strength. Almost every vote that deserted from the ranks of the learned theorist returned to strengthen the Democratic column. The 63,000 votes given George in the race for Mayor dwindled down to nothing almost, and left him stranded. The power of Mr.
George as a political factor is evidently no longer felt or feared. His theories and the novelty of his campaign, attracted many towards him when he was a candidate for mayor who would not, on reflection, endorse his candidacy for any other office, at another time. He has no helped his cause any by rushing into the maelstrom of politics. Those who have given his doctrines careful consideration and who believed him to be a sincere and honest enthusiast, were disgusted with his conversion to a wire working politician and left him. It is not intended to convey the impression that Mr. George was any more addicted to the tricks of politics than any of the other candidates, but the ideas which people had formed of his character and impulses from reading his published works were so decidedly at variance with the character of a politician that his assuming that role seemed a voluntary surrender of all claims upon public indulgence. As long as Mr.
George advanced his theories merely as a philanthropist, they were not antago-nized, but rather encouraged with good wishes and kindness for their author, but as soon as he attempted to convince the country that the majority of people thought as he did, that moment the opposition was aroused and his supporters deserted him. The results are that George-ism in its present form is a thing of the past, and that the Democracy is safe in New York and will be in the next presidential election. Cleveland's nomination and re-election are now assured.

THE ANARCHISTS.

The last act in the terrible Haymarket drama has been concluded by the execution of the four anarchists. Their crime was a great one, and their punishment has been as severe as it is possible for human law to inflict. They have been justly punished under the law, assuming that their trial and conviction was fair and just, and the lesson taught by their fates will doubtless warn others to beware of danger and depend on constitutional means for the redress of grievances resulting from oppressive laws. There are few who do not regret the stern necessity of taking the lives of men who, perhaps, had educated themselves to believe that the principles they advocated were just, and who were laboring for the advancement of the human family, in good faith. There is a sort of sympathy felt for them owing to the peculiar circumstances that surrounded their cases. It was not proven that any one of the condemned were guilty of throwing the fatal bomb, or that they were connected with the one who did throw it: in fact the real culprit is unknown and his identity has never yet been discovered.
The condemned were executed for inciting by incendiary speeches and publications others to violate the laws and commit murder.

It is unwise to test how far American liberty of speech extends, because if the experimenter ventures too far he will have to suffer the consequences of his rashness, be those consequences what they may. The execution of these criminals will have one salutary effect. It is the death knell to anarchy in this country.
Those violent apostles of destruction will see that their theories are not palatable and are unwelcome to the people of this country. The argument of brute force will no longer be believed in by deluded and ignorant men, and the unscrupulous agitator will know that if he leads his blind followers too far that he will be punished for it. The theory that these men "will preach more eloquently dead than living" is not tenable. Let them preach if they will, but they cannot preach away the laws of the country, and if the anarchists should attempt retaliation the people of this country who respect law and order would crush them beneath their feet. The rights of the people should be zealously guarded and protected. No unnecessary interference should be tolerated, and no attempt at abridging their rights permitted. On the other hand, the law of the land is supreme, and obedience to it should be enforced at all hazards. If our laws are defective, it is in our power, and within our province to remedy the defect peaceably.

Sunday Law to be Enforced at San An- tonio.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., Nov. 11.—Sheriff Lewis and City Marshal Shoreline were called before the grand jury to show cause why they have taken no cognizance of the continued disregard in this city of the new Sunday law. As a result the Sheriff and Marshal have issued a notice that beginning with next Sunday the law would be strictly enforced. The only places of business exempted under the new statute are restaurants, barber shops, newspapers, drug stores, livery stables, etc. The notice of the officers has raised quite a commotion among the Germans who, it is expected, will use all available methods to prevent it. Such proceedings as are attempted is entirely new to San Antonio on account of the extremely cosmopolitan character of the population. There has heretofore been no regard paid the Sabbath so far as suspension of business is concerned. There are perhaps 100 beer gardens here—where nearly the entire population of the city docks on Sunday, and it is especially among these proprietors that the enforcement of the law will work. A mass meeting will be called to-morrow to consider the matter.

Suit for False Imprisonment.

SHERMAN, TEX., Nov. 11.—The interesting case of L. M. Trumbull of Denison vs. W. T. Gunn, Sheriff of Lamar county, et al, for damages for false imprisonment is now on trial before a jury in the District court. The plaintiff was arrested in Denison on the 27th of August last by Sheriff Gunn or one of his deputies, who took him to be a man by name of Crandle who was wanted in New York for grand larceny, obtaining life insurance money through agents or relatives who represented him as dead. The plaintiff was taken to Paris in this state and held in jail for a short while and released.
Sheriff Gunn discovered that he was not the right man. Trumbull now asks for $20,000 damages, which he claims he sustained by the imprisonment. The case will probably be decided to-morrow.

Pool Play Suspected.

GATESVILLE, TEX., Nov. 9.—John F.
Graham, who lives near the grove in this county, left his home last Friday for Mc-Gregor, stating to his family that he would be at home by the next evening.
As he had not returned by Monday his relatives and friends left home in search of him. His wagon and team were found tied up in the Leon river bottom, and up to last evening no trace of Mr. Graham was reported. It is supposed that he met with foul play, as he went to McGregor on business, and is reported to have had some $200 or $300 when he started home.

Assignment at Vernon.

SPECIAL to the Gazette.
VERNON, TEX., Nov. 11.—The old and reliable house of Robinson Bros. & Co., made an assignment to-day. E. E.
Chase is the assignee. The assets and liabilities were not ascertained. The assignment is made in the interest of the Merchants' National bank of Fort Worth. Consideration is $8000, now due and for further advances. It is thought and hoped that this firm will be able to resume soon.

Charley Bozell Indicted.

SPECIAL to the Gazette.
GAINESVILLE, TEX., Nov. 11.—The grand jury returned a bill for murder against Charley Bozell to-day. His trial is set for November 28, this term. His bond which was placed at $2500 was signed by some of the most influential men of this county and many others volunteered to sign if necessary.

Weatherford to Have Waterworks.

SPECIAL to the Gazette.
WEATHERFORD, TEX., Nov. 11.—This morning work was begun on the well for the waterworks in the southwest part of the city, near Oyster Hill, and will be pushed to the utmost. The stock has all been taken and in a very short time this city will be furnished with waterworks.

Heavy Failure at Ennis.

SPECIAL to the Gazette.
ENNIS, TEX., Nov. 11.—Tom King, one of our heaviest merchants, made an assignment with S. D. Walker, assignee.
It is estimated the liabilities will amount to $35,000, about $18,000 preferred claims. The assets cannot be given, but they will not cover the liabilities.

Took Too Much Opium.

SPECIAL to the Gazette.
MILLICAN, TEX., Nov. 11.—Professor Stone, an aged and respected citizen, was found dead in his bed this morning, from an overdose of opium. He was addicted to opium eating, but it is believed he took an overdose with suicidal intent.

The Great Specific in 1849 and 1860.

WHITNEY'S ILLNESS.

Is it Due to the Malarious Potomac?— His Daily Horseback Rides and His Methods of Dietation.

How he Made Seventy Thousand Dollars
Out of Grasslands, and How he Keeps Four Houses Open.

Special Correspondence of the Gazette.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The sickness of Secretary Whitney is more serious than his friends at the Navy Department will concede. He has been under the weather for several months, for his illness has been as far as possible concealed, and it would not now be known were it not that it is feared a report would be dissema-ted that he had lost his mind. Certain statements that were made led his friends to suppose that such a supposition might arise and they have put forth the statement that he is incapacitated from work on account of severe headaches. This statement is a true one as far as it goes. The Secretary's mind is as clear as a bell and it is only continuous mental labor that affects his head. He has had these headaches for a year or more, but they have steadily increased during the past summer until his doctor has now absolutely for-bidden Department work. It is said that he will be back at the Navy Department within a few weeks, but I am informed by one of his most intimate friends that it is hardly possible that he can recover without months of complete rest. He will make no report of his work during the past year, and this notwithstanding that his notes for such a report have been gathered together and that the material is ready for him to dictate it. Secretary Whitney is very proud of the work he has done in the Navy Department during the past year. He has let contracts running into the millions, and has reorganized several branches of the department. If his sickness were to be of a week or so he would not relinquish the idea that he might complete his report during the month of November, but the matter will be now handed over to the Acting Secretary and the report will be furnished by him to the President.

Secretary Whitney will remain away from Washington for some time and whether he leaves the Cabinet or not he will go to some place where he cannot be disturbed by public men. This place may be Lenox, Massachusetts, and one of his friends advances the idea that he may possibly go abroad. Whether he can do this and still retain his Cabinet position is a question though I think there is nothing in the law to prevent it. The Senators of the United States are often abroad when they should be in their seats in the Senate chamber and the judges of the Supreme court frequently make trips to Europe.

Secretary Whitney's sickness has its origin in two causes. One of these is overwork, and the other is the Potomac malaria. During the past summer he has spent more time in Washington than any of the Cabinet ministers, and some of the hardest work which he has done during his administration has been during the hottest months of last summer. His office in the Navy Department has great windows which look out upon the Potomac, and the foul air from the flats has been blown in upon him. Upon the Potomac flats the dredges have been working all summer, and when it is considered that all the sewerage of the city goes into the river, the character of these breezes can be understood. The Navy Department itself is located within an eighth of a mile of the river banks, and the fact that the Secretary rode every night to Grasslands has not saved him from his disease-bearing influence. He has at the same time been busily engaged upon his letting of large contracts, and he has had to investigate these matters for himself. While Garland was rusticated in his log cabin at Hornby Hall, near Little Rock, and Endicott was breathing the salt sea air which blows through Salem, Mass., while Vilas was boating on Lake Mendota, which washes his home at Madison, Wis., and Lamar was taking his first vacation with his new wife in Mississippi, Whitney, the society man of the Cabinet, was digging away among facts and figures and breathing all the while the malarious air. He would come to the office at 9:30 or 10 in the morning, and would not leave it until 4 in the afternoon, and the result is the sickness which invariably comes to the Cabinet ministers who live in these buildings and disregard the laws of health. Chandler was sick nearly all the time he was head of the Navy and a great deal of his work was done in bed. He had the dyspepsia continually and his predecessor Secretary Hunt was not at all well while he was Secretary. The sickness of Manning and Folger was undoubtedly added to by the malarious influence of the Potomac and President Cleveland's rheumatism had its origin in the same quarter. It is only the sturdiest exercise that keeps Bayard in good physical condition and Secretary Whitney would have broken down long since had it not been for his love of horseback riding. Don Cameron and Secretary Bayard were frequently seen with him, and just adjoining his country estate is the Country Riding Club which is kept up by the wealthier of the public men and the young bipeds of Washington society.

Whitney's account of his horseback bought Grasslands. It has been a good investment for him. He paid $30,000 for it, spent $10,000 in repairing the house and in fixing up the grounds and has now sold it for such a price that he has made between $60,000 and $70,000 out of it.
He still keeps a full corps of servants in it whether he is there or not, and there is always someone ready to receive and welcome a visitor.
The mistress of Grasslands, during the absence of the Secretary and his family, is an ebony-hued maiden whose name is Priscilla, and who is a great favorite with the legislators. She has directions to open the house to all who come, and she can talk French like a native. There is always a nice lunch on the sideboard during the afternoon, and Priscilla tells all callers to help themselves to the wines upon the table in the hall. Secretary Whitney has retained a lease upon Grasslands during the present administration, with the privilege of renewing it for two years after its close.

I hear nothing of Secretary Whitney's city home being closed for the winter. On the contrary it is generally understood that Mrs. Whitney is to be here and that her entertainments are to surpass those of preceding years. The house is thoroughly organized and preparations have been made for the winter. Secretary Whitney is noted for the excellence of his servants, and he has a faculty of getting the best men to work for him. He is a good judge of men and in his appoint-
